

HOW TO PROGRAM A BELIEF REGARDING YOUR PARTNERSHIPS:

Note: Use the worksheet for the tutorial to identify, define, and program your beliefs.

It is important that you use your own words and expressions! Write the way you think!

1. Go to a quiet place, relax, and activate your I-frequency. Think of someone you love or something you love.
2. Think about your partnerships in general. To what extent do you focus on wanting a partner, missing one, needing one or maybe on the things you don't like in your partnership? Observe how you feel, e.g., when you think about your relationships. How does your I-frequency react?

YOUR I-FREQUENCY BECOMES STRONGER

3. If you feel good because your I-frequency is getting stronger, analyze the content of your thoughts. How do you feel about your partnership / marriage? What words do you use? Why do you feel good when you think about it?

Write down a few key points under ① in the worksheet.

This section describes how you have thought up until now.

4. Consider whether you want to continue thinking this way or whether you want to optimize your thoughts a little more so that you feel even better and express even more confidence and love when you think about your partnership.

Once you are clear about how you want to think, write down your thoughts under ⑤.

This section describes how you want to think now.

Continue here at point 5.

YOUR I-FREQUENCY BECOMES WEAKER

3. If you don't feel well or your I-frequency drops, you have identified an unfavorable belief. This belief relates to an aspect of your partnership / marriage. Identify which area this is and analyze the thoughts behind your belief. How do you express absence, separation, lack, or wanting (fear) in this area? Identify the words you use to express that you are unable to express love in this area.

Write down these thoughts under ① in the worksheet.

This section describes how you have thought up until now.

4. Now define your new belief/thoughts that express a presence and love. Formulate thoughts that suit your level: statements that you can think and feel without resistance, i.e., your I-frequency remains constant or improves. Don't go straight to the top!

Write down this content (as bullet points) under ⑤.

This area describes how you want to think now.

Continue here at point 5.

5. Next, formulate how you want to feel in your partnership / marriage and write it down under ②.
6. Then formulate what you would like to perceive in your partnership / marriage and write it down under ③.
7. Now combine points ② and ③ into a single statement (can be several sentences!) and write it down under ④.
8. Combine the statement under ④ with the content for your new belief under ⑤ (into a statement!) and write it down under ⑥.
9. Write down your belief in as many places as possible. Write little notes and hang them up. Write the belief in a notebook and carry it with you at all times. The aim is to remind yourself of your new belief as often as possible.

You can also create reminders for yourself, such as small colorful dots or other symbols that you stick everywhere. These will subconsciously remind you of your new belief.

Be creative!

10. Think only this new belief! Think it as often as possible, e.g. when you interact with your partner or when you think about them, or maybe when notice that your I-frequency drops, because you cannot express love the way you would like to. Think it whenever the topic is relevant.
11. You should take action! Get started and remain disciplined until your new belief is programmed and you notice that your focus is stronger than before!
12. Complete additional tutorials, as everything is connected and your skills influence each other. It is therefore very important that you work on all your skills and achieve a high level of proficiency. Your I-frequency will show you where you still need to improve.

Listen to it!